Detention pond safety measures increased

CESD says fence, signs needed

BY LEA SMALDON
Didsbury Review

School board officials are taking steps this week to prevent potential tragedy at the storm water retention pond in front of Didsbury High School.

A fence is being erected around the entire perimeter of the pond and signs will be posted indicating the dangers of the now entirely unsupervised water runoff collection area.

Trustees with the Chinook's Edge School Division raised concerns about the safety of the unrestricted pond during last week's board meeting.

"If a child should wander in there and drown it would be terrible. We dug the hole, it's on our property - it would be our responsibility," said Didsbury trustee and board chair Roy Brassard.

School board officials never expected the pond to still be in use by this stage of the school's development.

The pond was dug when the school was under construction last year to drain run-off water from the site.

"If a child should wander in there and drown it would be terrible. We dug the hole, it's on our property - it would be our responsibility."

ROY BRASSARD
CESD board chair

The Town of Didsbury was to provide a more permanent solution, said Brassard.

"We've raised it several times with the town and so far nothing," said Brassard.

The pond has already attracted recreational users with a canoe being launched in it in recent weeks.

"I can understand the attraction for that but that's not what it's there for."

The board unanimously agreed last Wednesday to the extra precautions and the added expense it will bring, especially since school is now out of session for the summer.

"We have a certain amount of control during the school year but the summer's a different story," said Brassard.

He estimated it would cost $10,000 to $12,000 to erect a suitable fence.

The school division will continue to press for a permanent solution, he said.

"We really would prefer it to be pumped out and filled in," he said.

CHR administrator's $1.2 million earnings justified: board

Liberals question CEO's $192,000 bonus

BY DAN SINGLETON
For the Review

Calgary Health Region officials are defending their CEO's reported $1.2 million compensation 2007 package after politicians raised questions last week about the top administrator's bonus.

The Calgary Health Region released details of chief executive officer Jack Davis's pay and benefits last week.

Davis will reportedly earn $1.2 million this year, including a base salary of $414,000, a $192,000 bonus, and a $605,383 contribution to an executive retirement plan that will be paid to the Davis on his retirement.

The CHR board says Davis's compensation package is fair.

"Jack delivers great value and we have a hell of a bargain on our hands," CHR chairman David Tuer said during a press conference.

The opposition Liberals questioned some parts of Davis's compensation package.

"What exactly has Mr. Davis done to deserve a bonus of this scale, when people are sitting in emergency rooms, when seniors are waiting for service?" said Liberal leader Kevin Taft.

Tuer said the Calgary Health Region is one of the largest, fully integrated, publicly funded health-care systems in Canada and has accomplished a great deal this past year in its ongoing efforts to address growth pressures.

"Jack Davis's compensation reflects both the size and scope of responsibility associated with leading one of Canada's fastest growing health regions and he is doing it during very challenging times," said Tuer.

Mr. Davis has received an average of 3.57 per cent increase to his base pay over the past seven years.

Benchmarking by several independent management consulting firms indicates Davis's earnings are in the bottom half of his peer group of executives leading major Western Canadian organizations of similar size in the private and public sectors, according to the CHR.

The long-time chief executive officer and president of the David Thompson Health Region will receive total compensation of $350,000 this year – or less than one third of that received by the Calgary Health Region CEO for the same period.

Officials say John Vogelzang, who has been the head of the DTHR for a decade, will receive a base salary of $305,000, plus benefits totally 17 per cent of his salary. The total includes pension contribution.

"At John's request, he very firmly refused any increase in compensation this year," said Jean Graham, chairperson of the DTHR. "He feels that he is being appropriately paid and in this environment he should not be receiving an increase this year. We did insist that he get a cost of living increase, because that's only appropriate. Other than that, he won't be getting any increase in compensation."

"We are getting incredible, incredible service. We have an incredible CEO and we are very proud of him and we feel he is appropriately compensated for the work he does for us."

The CEO is the top administrator in the region, overseeing all operations across the region.

Asked if she has any comment on Davis's compensation, DTHR chairperson Graham replied, "I can't make any comment on Calgary, but we feel we are getting incredible value for our money."

What you need to know about West Nile virus

"I ended up being sick for three weeks, and the most frightening part was not knowing if it would keep getting worse."

— Coreen, Bow Island, AB
West Nile fever survivor

West Nile virus remains a health concern for all Albertans. Those over the age of 50 are at greater risk of becoming seriously ill when infected with West Nile virus.

- Your best protection is insect repellent with DEET. Used as directed, DEET has an excellent safety record.
- Products with lemon eucalyptus oil are effective for shorter periods of time.
- Wear long-sleeved shirts and pants at dusk and dawn when mosquitoes are most active.

Fire Hall options now under review

BY LEA SMALDON
Didsbury Review

The Didsbury and District Fire Authority is resurrecting plans to retrofit or find a new location for the town's fire hall over continued concerns for department members' safety.

An Emergency Services Feasibility Analysis of Dec. 10, 2001 outlined the need for a new building for the fire department in 2010.

Authority members note there was no mention of a new fire hall during a spring open house hosted by town officials to discuss future needs in Didsbury.

With Didsbury continuing to grow, fire department officials say they continue to be concerned over having adequate facilities.

Authority committee chairman Brian Wittal said concerns lay not only with trying to accommodate bigger trucks and equipment in the current building, there are also safety issues.

"The building doesn't have proper ventilation for the trucks to be running in there," said Wittal. "And it only takes one incident."

Since the feasibility analysis was done, Wittal said potential new sites were evaluated but the issue was put on the backburner over the years for a variety of reasons, including cost.

The authority wants to bring the issue to the forefront again, recognizing that the impending municipal elections in October will make a final decision unattainable at this point.

"We've got a couple of years ahead of us so what we can do now is start the ball rolling in terms of options and that," said Wittal.

With the signing of a new fire agreement with Mountain View County, Wittal said discussions can now ensue between the two municipalities on a possible partnership in the venture.

Preliminary discussions revolved around securing a new location, such as east of the tracks at the old Esso building. And while other new location options are also being sought, Wittal said members will also investigate using and retrofitting existing infrastructure.

The authority will discuss the issue again at its next meeting in July.

MURRAY ELLIOTT

We would like to apologize to our readers who did not receive the June 26 issue of the Didsbury Review and Mountain View Gazette. Due to Canada Post regulations, many households who refuse flyers, also did not receive a paper. We've since been able to provide a paper and the enclosed Mountain View Telephone Directory insert to many who were missed. The June 26 editions and the Mountain View Telephone Directory are available at the Didsbury Review office.

Thank you for your patience. The situation has been resolved.

Letter to editor Youth clubs deserve our support

Seven years ago two community groups got together to form one group committed to bringing safe, fun and educational programs and events for Didsbury and area families and youth. This group, The Child & Youth Clubs of Didsbury, currently runs eight programs in Didsbury and hosts many events throughout the year. We work hand in hand with many of the great programs and organizations in town, collaboratively making Didsbury a positive place for families to grow.

None of our programs or events would be possible without the help of our amazing volunteers and partners. The Didsbury Municipal Library, Didsbury Lions Club, Didsbury FCSS, Didsbury High School, Didsbury Hospital and many more organizations work with us throughout the year and we appreciate their partnership and support. Our board members Kerri Grue, Tricia Neufeld, Renee Winter, Cindy Tippe, Angie Laveck, Lorinda Power, Glenda Torchia, Donna McWhinney, Kellie McPherson and Pam Cameron work very hard to keep our programs fun and successful. Many families involved in our programs help out during events and fundraisers; we appreciate them being so enthusiastic and supportive.

I am writing this letter not only to thank everyone who keeps our organization the fun, positive group that it is; but also to ask the community for their support.

I have had so much fun watching our new programs grow and continuing programs revitalize, it has truly been one of the greatest groups I have been a part of. However, after three years as president it is time for me to step down from this position.

If you feel that keeping Didsbury the positive, supportive community it is for families and working collaboratively with other organizations to create new resources for families is important, please contact us about becoming part of our group.

We are in need of a president, but welcome all volunteers in other capacities.

Please visit our website www.didsburyfamilies.ca or contact me at 335-2388. I look forward to "passing the torch" and watching their new ideas brighten our already glowing community.

At The Kitchen Table

NOREEN OLSON

My mother's father, John Mattern, died before I was born but Mom often talked about him and we kids felt that we knew Grandpa Mattern. He was born in 1861 near Oslo, Kristiania then, in the village of Jevnaker.

When he was about four years old he ran away from home. No one paid much attention to his leaving and when he had gone a little way and changed his mind, no one paid much attention when he came back. He had been gone about an hour and according to family legend he walked wearily into his mother's kitchen, sat down by the fire and said, "I see you still have the same old cat."

Jevnaker is the site of The Hadeland Glassverks and the Mattern Family were glassblowers. Grandpa's grandfather came to Jevnaker from Waldorf, Bohemia which at that time was under Austrian rule. He, his sons and grandsons all worked at the glass factory and according to the census of 1875 my great-grandfather was a master glassblower and my grandfather, who was 14 in 1875, was an apprentice glassblower.

He had begun work at the factory when he was five and his job at that time was to pick up the bits of waste glass that fell from the wands and return them to the melting pot. Grandpa must have become adept at his craft because we have a few pieces of his work that include beautifully engraved brandy sniffers, a carafe with a cut glass stopper and a glass stamp meant to emboss his initials in hot wax. There were more pieces but it was a big family and by the time each branch got a few bits and some things got broken, there was not much left.

In the late 1800s most of grandpa's family, including his father and stepmother and a lot of siblings came to North Dakota and then to Marysville in Washington state. While they lived in Washington, grandpa took part in the Klondike Gold Rush but he did not make a fortune and in 1901 he and grandma took up a homestead west of Ponoka. My mother was born there in 1902. Grandpa and Grandma, John and Annie Mattern, farmed and eventually, after their son Albert took over, their homestead became a showplace. Grandpa died in 1929, Grandma in 1946; neither of them had ever been back to Norway.

By the time you read this Ralph and I, our daughter Kirsten, her husband Harry and children Jonas, 5 and Anna, 3, will be in Norway. I have been in touch, via email, with one of the curators at the museum at Hadeland Glassverks and I am taking photos of John and Herman Mattern, a copy of the 1875 census and my little pieces of grandpa's glass. In return for this contribution to the museum's archives I hope we at least get a guided tour of the glass factory and maybe some lute-fisk in the cafeteria but I am not counting on anything. Norwegians are not easily excited and maybe people show up all the time with ancestral photos and bits of memorabilia from 135 years ago. I am not sure that I am giving him my dear little chipped brandy glass either. I think it would be lovely for it to be returned to the factory that birthed it all those long years ago but I will want to know that it's going to be appreciated.

I have a handmade leather folder that belonged to Grandpa Mattern. In it are several clippings from newspapers and magazines. Some of the articles have to do with ways to doctor animals or grow better crops but most of the pieces are quite sweet and sentimental little poems and songs. I wish I had known Grandpa and I wonder what he would think about our visit to the Glassverks.

Ponderings of the heart

Our Journey

MARGARET FRADLEY

We are all on a journey, and as we journey through our individual lives, we meet many fellow travellers. Some become lifelong friends; others remain acquaintances but each person we meet along the way has an impact on our lives. Sometimes they alter the direction of our lives, other times they journey with us for a time, then we go our separate ways. There are just the ones we need to meet at that particular leg of our journey, other times we are meant to be there for them. Each person we meet is significant to our journey, and in one way or another affects our lives.

There are times we seem to journey along for a time; perhaps time for reflection, a time to work things out along the way. We have a granddaughter who is travelling in Europe, (Italy, Austria and Switzerland). She is travelling alone and has met many fellow travellers, as she spends her time at hostels. What an experience.

Although as grandparents we get concerned, we know she is wise, capable of making good decisions, and will make lifelong friends along the way, benefiting from each one she meets.

Our journeys may have occasional detours, unexpected, which seem for a time to take us off our desired path, but have their purpose. Perhaps we don't see them at the time, but later on recognize them as invaluable to our journey.

May we be expectant, looking forward to those we meet, knowing there is a reason for our 'coming together'. Thank you for being part of my journey.

Request for Proposals

Alberta Municipal Affairs has mandated that every municipality in the Province of Alberta have in place a list and account for all tangible capital assets. This accounting must be completed by September 2009.

The Town of Didsbury is requesting proposals from individual with accounting experience or accounting firms who may be interested in compiling this list.

Tangible capital assets would include such diverse items as roads, buildings, vehicles, equipment, land, computer hardware and software and utilities.

Each tangible capital asset would need to be listed and then for each asset the following established: Original cost, The net book value, Residual value, Service potential and Useful life.

It is estimated that this project will take approximately 1000 hours. It is the desire of the Town of Didsbury to begin the project in October of 2007 with the completion goal being December 2008.

The successful individual or firm must have accounting experience and must be able to accomplish the above with minimal supervision. It is anticipated that the project will require considerable research and individuals or firms having experience in compiling such a list will be given preference. Preference will also be given to individuals or firms with experience in a municipal setting.

For more information please contact Roy Brown, Chief Administrative Officer, (403)335-3391.

Proposals should be submitted in confidence to:

Proud to be Canadian

BY LEA SMALDON
Didsbury Review

Despite living the majority of her life in England, Didsbury resident Sarah Hurrell says she now feels more of a connection with Canada than her native homeland. Her husband, Cameron, just graduated Canadian Forces basic training last Thursday and is embarking on a further 10 months of training in Borden, Ontario.

Her husband's accomplishment makes her extremely proud not just on a personal level but on a civic one as well, she says.

"It actually does make me feel more Canadian. I'm very proud of my British heritage. But I feel more of a connection with Canada - I married a Canadian and he's now serving our country. I'm very proud of that," Hurrell said.

Board members sought for soccer

BY LEA SMALDON
Didsbury Review

A whole slate of executive board members is being sought to carry one of Didsbury's most popular recreational sports into the 2008 season.

An existing interim board of Didsbury Minor Soccer Association hopes to fill each position on the board during the annual general meeting Thursday night.

"All positions are open. It's very important (to have a full board). If you want your kids involved you need to help out," said Carla Ridley, Didsbury soccer PR coordinator.

There were 270 players this year between the ages of four and 18 on 22 teams.

"I think it was a successful year but I also think it was a learning year," she said.

Ridley said this year's roster was larger than last year and the association encountered problems with having enough coaches and volunteers to suffice the growing need.

The sport is popular because of its age inclusiveness, relatively low cost, and active nature of the game, she said.

Youth - U6, U8, U10 - play in an in-house league in town. The U12, U14, U16 and U18 teams have away games.

Conrad Cardinal coached the U12 Girls team to a bronze finish at the Big Country Soccer district finals.

Mark Leggette's U16 Girls team won silver during the same finals.

ArtWalk launch pairs artists with local businesses

Wellspring kicks off summer show and sale

BY LEA SMALDON
Didsbury Review

Artists and businesses are hoping to drum up increased awareness and sales with today's launching of an event unique to the Olds and Didsbury area.

The Wellspring Visual ArtNetwork Association was expected to kickoff ArtWalk 2007 today with a ribbon cutting in downtown Olds.

The event pairs participating businesses in Olds and Didsbury with an area artist in an attempt to increase the communities' exposure to art readily created by locales.

Twenty-three artists from the area will be displaying and selling their artwork in 23 businesses in the two towns between now and August 18.

Sundre, Didsbury, Olds, Innisfail, and Bowden artists are participating.

"The majority of artists aren't in a position to have a storefront. So this gives them an outlet to showcase and sell," said Bill Anthony, a Didsbury stained glass artist who is handling ArtWalk promotion.

Eight businesses in Didsbury are participating in the summer event, with the remaining located in Olds.

"It's offering people an opportunity to get out and around town and see things they've maybe never seen before in places they probably have never seen it in."

BILL ANTHONY

Artist, business owner

Anthony said participating businesses will also benefit from the increased promotion.

Five thousand brochures featuring the businesses' locations on a map are being distributed to tourist information booths, hotels and other participating businesses in the promotion of the event.

"It's offering people an opportunity to get out and around town and see things they've maybe never seen before in places they probably have never seen it in."

The art that will be on display is as varied as the artists themselves, he said.

Most of the offerings will primarily be "flat art" - acrylics, water colours, and fabric art.

Businesses were able to select an artist appropriate to their setting, he said.

ArtWalk is not the first effort Wellspring has launched to benefit the more than 70 artists which gathered to form the group last fall.

Organized showings have been held during both the Olds and Didsbury trade shows. Future events include showings at area fairs and rodeos as well as a possible fall art tour.

RCMP used covert vehicles in crackdown

Yesterday marked the end of a planned crackdown on high-risk drivers on Highway 2.

RCMP Innisfail Traffic Services along with other enforcement agencies were expected to conduct a Selective Traffic Enforcement Plan (STEP) on Highway 2 starting last Friday.

A number of covert RCMP vehicles were to be driven by plain clothes RCMP Traffic Services members monitoring traffic on Highway 2.

These covert vehicles were to be supported by a large number of uniformed members operating marked police transports, according to police.

High risk driving behaviors were to be observed and documented and details radioed to the marked patrol units who were to initiate a traffic stop.

The covert vehicle operators were looking for those drivers who were speeding, driving aggressively, following too close, equipment violations and otherwise driving unsafely. Drivers who were displaying these driving patterns and caught were to be charged accordingly, and the tickets issued will carry demerit points where applicable.)

Human remains, possible First Nation's burial site

On June 21 construction activity on a quarter section of land south of Ponoka unearthed human remains that may date back to the early 1900s and may have ties with the Sharpehead Indian Reserve and Mission of that era, report police.

Ponoka RCMP say the investigation to date has determined this to be non-criminal.

The matter is currently under review by the Archaeological Survey of Alberta and other government departments as a possible First Nations Burial Grounds. Over the past several decades a number of remains have been exhumed from the area with links to a First Nations Burial Grounds.

The Chief Medical Examiner's Office and a Forensic Anthropologist have been contacted to assist investigators.

Construction efforts at the location have been halted with a high degree of cooperation and professionalism exercised by company responsible.

RCMP are contacting First Nations Communities in the area to ensure cultural protocols are properly addressed. In addition to conducting an investigation RCMP will remain in contact with First Nation Community Leaders, the Officer of the Medical Examiner and the Archaeological Survey of Alberta to ensure all avenues are properly addressed.

ROAD RULES APPLY TO BICYCLES – Didsbury Firefighters attend to an 85-year-old woman who was hit by a bicycle that was being ridden by a 14-year-old boy, near Front Porch Realty in Didsbury. RCMP said the boy was exiting an alley and turned right onto a sidewalk when he hit the woman, knocking her down, where she struck her head on the back of a parked vehicle. While the woman was not seriously injured RCMP are reminding cyclists that the rules of the road apply to vehicles and bicycles alike. Bicycles are not permitted on sidewalks and riders must stop before entering intersections.

DIDSBURY REVIEW

WALTER DOUGLAS SHAW
DECEMBER 19, 1929 - JUNE 23, 2007

On June 23, 2007, Walter Douglas Shaw, formerly of Didsbury, Olds and most recently of Innisfail, Alberta passed away peacefully at the Innisfail Rosefield Centre at the age of 77. The family would like to extend their special thanks to the Rosefield Centre staff and Dr. Van Wyk for their excellent care. To the owner and staff at Mountain View Restaurant for their kindness and service over the years. Also to all those who were a part of his daily rounds in the community. As per Walter's request, there will be no funeral service. Cremation entrusted to Personal Alternative Funeral Services, Calgary and Red Deer, 1-888-216-5111.
